Emergency Situations

The following policies are all subject to Durham County's policy that addresses emergency situations which states:

Essential Positions – Positions held by employees who provide services that are crucial to ensuring the health, well-being and safety of residents and County employees, as designated by the Department Director or County Manager. All positions are designated as essential in emergency situations.... In the event of emergency situations, all employees are deemed essential personnel and will be required to report to work or remain on the premises if directed. Failure to do so may result in disciplinary action up to and including dismissal.

Notwithstanding, in general, and at management's discretion, an employee may be asked to telecommute if the job or some components of it can be done off site without disruption to the flow of work and communication. Employees should not assume any specified period for telecommuting, and may be expected to return to regular, in-office work at any time. It is important to note that all Durham County employees are essential employees and can be recalled to the office. However, their in-person attendance at work may not be required during this COVID-19 emergency.

Employees providing direct emergency services and/or support services that interface with the public during the COVID-19 event or staffing the County's Emergency Operation Center are eligible for the County's 10% differential pay during the time period covered by the March 14, 2020 local emergency declaration. The differential pay must be authorized by your Department Director and General Manager.

Emergency Medical Services (EMS) first responders will adhere to the Departmental and State guidelines for EMS. Contact your manager with questions.

General Services will ensure a clean work environment, including the regular cleaning of objects and areas that are frequently used by the public, conference rooms, bathrooms, breakrooms, door handles, and railings.

All employees should take steps to reduce the transmission of communicable diseases in the workplace. Employees are reminded of the following:

- Stay home when you are sick.
- Wash your hands frequently with warm, soapy water for at least 20 seconds.

- Cover your mouth with tissues whenever you sneeze, and discard used tissues in the trash.

- Given the current state of technology and limited remote access to critical systems, immediate implementation of telecommuting arrangements may be delayed. However, employees may discuss arrangements to telecommute with their Department Directors to explore alternate telecommuting options.
- Department Directors are responsible for the approval or denial of telecommuting and for monitoring telecommuting necessity and productivity.
- It is the Department Director's responsibility to ensure the telecommuting arrangements are not abused.
