

INTRODUCTION

In 2022, the Durham County Department of Public Health completed a community-wide, door-to-door survey to understand health issues affecting Durham County. People reported mental health and substance use as important issues that impact quality of life in Durham. This guide was developed to help Durham community members identify resources that can support the health and dignity of people using substances.

This resource was developed with support from the state of North Carolina through the Community Linkages to Care for Overdose Prevention and Response grant. This guide does not provide a full list of all health facilities and organizations in Durham. It highlights places ready to assist people with limited money and resources. If you or someone you know is seeking support, know that there are local services and resources for people using drugs to increase their wellbeing through a spectrum of strategies, including safer techniques, managed use, and abstinence.

This guide and other information about Durham County resources are available through the Durham County Department of Public Health:

What is substance use disorder & how is it treated?

A substance use disorder (SUD) is use of alcohol or drugs that is a chronic, relapsing disease. Often SUD is a repeated pattern of substance misuse leading to clinically significant impairment or distress. SUD develops gradually over time and may cause neuroadaptations.

Most treatment programs assign patients to a treatment team of professionals. Depending on the type of treatment, teams can be made up of social workers, counselors, doctors, nurses, psychologists, psychiatrists, or other professionals. It's important to remember that treatment looks different for everyone and should be based upon their individual goals. Typical forms of treatment can include reducing harms with ongoing use, the use of medications (with or without counseling) and abstinence. Recovery and treatment are not static, and goals of the individual may change over time.

Table

Peer Support Specialists are people who have lived experience with substance use or mental illness. They are trained to support people and help connect them to services such as treatment, harm reduction, housing, job resources, and transportation. If you are not sure how to use this guide or where to begin your recovery journey, peer support specialists are a good place to start.

What is medicationassisted treatment?

Medication-assisted treatment (MAT), also known as Medication for Opioid Use Disorder (MOUD), is the use of medications, in combination with counseling and behavioral therapies, to provide a "whole-patient" approach to the treatment of substance use disorders.

Medications used in MAT relieve withdrawal symptoms and cravings. They are approved by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) and include methadone and buprenorphine containing medications such as Suboxone.

Research shows that a combination of medication and therapy can successfully treat substance use disorders. People can stay on MAT to help sustain recovery and prevent opioid overdose.

911 Good Samaritan Law

https://www.morepowerfulnc.org/get-involved/good-samaritan-law/

Under North Carolina's Good Samaritan Law you may not be prosecuted for certain drug offenses if:

- You seek medical assistance for someone experiencing a drug-related overdose by contacting the 911 system, a law enforcement officer, or emergency medical services personnel.
- You believe that you are the first person to seek medical assistance for the overdose victim.
- You provide your name to the 911 system or to a law enforcement officer upon arrival.
- Law enforcement officers were not already at your location executing an arrest warrant, search warrant, or other lawful search.
- Any evidence for prosecution of a drug-related offense obtained by law enforcement authorities was obtained because you sought medical assistance for a drug-related overdose.

Overdose Prevention & Survival

The following tips can help you or a loved one avoid opioid overdose:

- Take medicine as prescribed by your practitioner – don't take it more often or a greater amount than directed
- Never mix pain medicines with alcohol, benzodiazepines, or illicit substances
- · Never take anyone else's medication
- Prevent children and pets from accidental ingestion by storing your medication out of reach
- Dispose of unused medication safely (See list of medicine drop-boxes in this guide.)
- Never use alone

Fentanyl is often added to illicit drugs without you knowing. Fentanyl is a powerful drug that can cause overdose. Always test for fentanyl before you use. You can get free fentanyl testing strips at the locations listed in this resource where you can also get sterile syringes.

Recognizing Opioid Overdose

Opioid overdose is life-threatening and requires immediate emergency attention. Recognizing the signs of opioid overdose is essential to saving lives. Call 911 immediately if a person exhibits ANY of the following symptoms:

- The person can't breathe their breathing or heartbeat slows or stops
- The person is unresponsive they can't be awakened or are unable to speak
- Their face is extremely pale and/or feels clammy to the touch
- · Their body goes limp
- Their fingernails or lips have a purple or blue color
- They start vomiting or making gurgling noises
- They have small, pinpoint pupils

If you have access to naloxone, administer it! Naloxone should be given first and then 911 needs to be called.

- Administer naloxone based on the specific instructions of the brand
- Perform rescue breathing, if trained
- Place the person in the recovery position and stay with them until help arrives

Even if you can't give naloxone or call 911, place the person in the recovery position.

Following safer injection practices can help prevent you from becoming infected with HIV or the Hepatitis C Virus. It can also protect you from bacterial infections, such as endocarditis (a heart infection) and skin infections such as cellulitis and abscesses.

- Before injecting, clean the area with an alcohol pad by rubbing in one direction and letting dry.
- Always use a new rig and equipment. Even if you never share, it's important to use new equipment to prevent bacterial infections.
- · Use sterile water.

increased bleeding.

- · Use cotton filters, not brittle filters like cigarette filters.
- · Don't lick your rig, this can introduce bacteria.
- Use gauze to press on injection site to stop bleeding (alcohol wipes prevent clotting).
- · Rotate your injection sites, don't use the same site more than once every couple of days.

Wound Care

It is important for people who use drugs to have access to adequate health care to attend to wounds that may be caused by intravenous drug use. A variety of first aid materials, including bandages, gauze, and antibiotic ointment, are important to prevent infection and promote healing.

Signs that you might have a skin infection include:

- Raised skin that is tender or painful
- An area that is warm to the touch
- Hardened tissue
- Possible drainage of pus
- Redness or rash
- Fever

If you are experiencing any of these, it is important to get medical attention as you may need an antibiotic. Avoid injecting near an abscess, and don't try to lance an abscess on your own.
