414 E. Main Street
(919) 560-5761

PURPOSE

The Food and Nutrition Services Program is designed to promote the general welfare of the nation's population and to safeguard its health and well-being by raising nutrition levels among low-income households.

SERVICES

Eligible households receive a monthly allotment to purchase food products. The benefits are electronically deposited into the Electronic Transfer Benefits (EBT) account monthly.

See also Electronic Benefits Transfer (EBT) program information.

Eligible individuals who are age 60 or over, homebound, or disabled may use Food and Nutrition Services benefits to purchase meals prepared for and delivered to them by a non-profit meal delivery service or at communal dining facilities. Homeless individuals may be eligible to purchase meals at communal dining facilities.

Certain unemployed or under employed individuals who do not meet work requirements are registered with the Division of Employment Security to receive assistance in obtaining employment or in building or enhancing their job skills.

Special projects include participation in the Just For Us Program which is an assessment and referral program for senior citizens.

ELIGIBILITY

The Food and Nutrition Services Program serves families and individuals of low-income households who meet federal/state income and asset guidelines and are residents of Durham County who need assistance meeting their food and nutritional needs. Eligible households may include elderly or disabled persons, employed or unemployed persons, families who receive Work First Family Assistance (WFFA), homeless individuals and others that qualify. There are also non-financial criteria that are considered such as citizenship, household composition, work requirements, and controlled substance requirements. With the exception of undocumented aliens, all applicants must provide their social security number or show proof that one has been applied for. Also, each particular applicant may have additional specific eligibility requirements determined by the household composition and household situation.

Certain individuals who receive Supplemental Security Income (SSI) may apply at the Social Security Administration.

Applications must be processed in time for eligible households to have the opportunity to purchase food no later than the 30th calendar day following the date of application. Applicants eligible for emergency services must be able to purchase food no later
